About UFU

Universidade Federal de Uberlândia (UFU) is one of the public, tuition-free Brazilian universities and is funded by the Ministry of Education. Since its founding in 1978, the university has been acquiring growing importance in the Brazilian education context.

UFU has always built up several traditional international relations by signing international cooperation agreements and supporting international mobility opportunities.

UFU is named after the city where most of its campi are located: Uberlândia

Road network

Easy access to highways that connect the city to the main capitals and regions of the country. Through the Integrated Uberlândia Program II, started in 2018, the City Hall will invest more than R$ 140 million in works and interventions in road infrastructure and urban mobility, in addition to contributing to job creation and local economic growth.
